Contra Costa Community College District          Curriculum and Instruction Procedure 4013

STUDY ABROAD

The District, through its colleges, offers students the opportunity to take credit college courses while studying in other countries through two programs: the semester-length and short-term study abroad programs. The District Director of International Education consults with the colleges to ensure that the semester-length and/or short-term programs meet the content and legal requirements for study abroad programs prior to submission for Board approval, including adherence to the process as stated in Business Procedure 8.21. Proposals must be resubmitted for approval each year.

All semester-length study abroad proposals developed by fulltime faculty and approved by the department chair and Division Dean must be submitted to the Districtwide Study Abroad Committee (DSAC) for evaluation and endorsement. The DSAC operates under a set of approved procedures governing the semester program requirements, academic content, vendors, health and liability coverage, including consultation with local study abroad consortium partners, which may jointly host these programs with the District colleges. All courses are taught by the colleges’ faculty recommended by the Districtwide Study Abroad Faculty Selection Committee. Semester-length study abroad courses will be offered by the college from which the faculty member is selected. All proposals must be approved by the college President or designee, the Chancellor or designee, and the Board.

Short-term study abroad programs may be developed by any faculty member who meets state and local minimum qualifications. These programs are coordinated through the appropriate college department, division, and President or designee. Each college will be responsible for making decisions regarding the number and type of short term study abroad programs that the college will offer. Short-term study abroad faculty are selected by the local college instructional administration prior to submission for Chancellor and Board approval.
